To access 100+ movie scripts made available by studios and production companies since 2009, go here.

Reading movie screenplays is absolutely critical to your development as a screenwriter. Along with watching movies and writing pages, it is a fundamental practice you should put into place. Make it a goal to read at least one movie script per week.

Where can you go to get access to many of the top movie scripts from 2021? Right here!

THESE SCRIPTS ARE FOR EDUCATIONAL PURPOSES ONLY!

NOTE: Our annual Go Into The Story Script Read and

Analysis series begins this month. If a 2021 movie script becomes available and you would like to read it and provide a scene-by-scene breakdown, let me know. This is a great tradition and provides a major benefit to the online screenwriting community.

Movie Script Scene-By-Scene Breakdowns

Thanks to everyone who participates in this annual project! Please email me your scene-by-scene breakdowns: GITSblog@gmail.com.

UPDATE: We have our first volunteers to do scene-by-scene breakdowns of 2021 movie scripts.

Laura Bolton / CODA
Ryan Canty / Encounter
Martina Cook / Belfast
Karen Dantas / Annette
Jaime Dunkle / Mass
Amy Falkofske / The Mitchells vs. The Machines
Lisa Gomez / tick, tick… BOOM!
Shari Hazlett / Being the Ricardos
Jodi Lustig / The Tomorrow War
Florencia Manovil / The Lost Daughter
Terry Melia / Dune

Volunteers, when you finish, email your breakdown to me at (GITSblog@gmail.com) as a Word or Pages doc.

Thanks, folks. Who’s next?
